Coming next week: GG Charger Athletes recognized and awarded at their winter sports banquet.

We're "even" here and we're happy with that

Written by Kari Sundberg, Eagle Editor

His name is Luis. And he's the sort of man that you just know has a lot of people in his life that feel so lucky to know and love him and have him a part of their day. I guess he was a part of our day, too, if only for a short six hours. But what a great six hours it was.

Luis lives on Isla Mujeres, which seems like a whole other world away, considering it's a little island off the coast of the Yucatan Peninsula in Mexico. In reality, it's just a four-hour flight and a half hour ferry ride away and you've landed on a tiny piece of tropical paradise.

The last thing Luis, a local on Isla Mujeres, said to us has stuck with me the last few days. Mainly because I took my daughter on a trip, just the two of us, and made beautiful memories that I know we'll both carry with us forever, but also because of the power behind his words. We got out of Luis' golf cart. He hugged me tight and gave me the sweetest kiss on the cheek. His bright, gleeful face turned to my daughter. With his hands reaching out, he smiled big, looked her in the eyes and said, "Have a BEAUTIFUL life, Anna."

And he meant it. My eyes instantly filled with tears. So many thoughts overtook me. I was so thankful to have met this kind man. I was so appreciative of our six hours together. I was so overtaken with his genuine, intentional spirit and his words held a lot of weight. We want our children to have beautiful lives.

Whether we enrich them with different travel experiences, wrap them up in the comfort of home, surround them with faith, family and friends, encourage them to spread their wings, or whatever tactics we take as parents, we just want our kids to have beautiful lives. And the people we meet along the way only add to that. Like Luis. I don't know what either of my kids' future holds, but I can only pray I am along for the ride and they both have a beautiful life filled with good, wholesome people.

As I write this, we are on the plane heading home. Home is such a safe, comforting word, and no matter how great vacations are, it's always so nice to get back home. I should mention that my son had the option of coming with us on our trip, but at age 18, he decided it would be more fun to book his own trip to Mexico with friends. Par for course, right? They are heading down in a couple of weeks. This will be his first time out of the country and as much as I wish I was going along with my bubble wrap and lectures, I'm just letting go with a smile and saying, "Jesus, take the wheel." He's going to have a great time and make some great memories, too.

After tons of searching, comparing, and budgeting, Anna and I decided Isla Mujeres seemed like the best fit for our week away.

Even though we are different in a lot of ways, my daughter and I are also similar in many ways. We both love being a part of something new in an up close and personal way. We'd rather be in the mix of it than sitting on the sidelines. We want to see. We want to do.

In fact, at breakfast this morning, I asked her what her favorite part of the week was. She could have easily said the 88-degree weather or being in her swimsuit in the bright turquoise Caribbean Sea, but no. Her favorite part was getting to go around the island and see how the locals live, where they work, what they do there and mingle in the midst of it. That was my favorite part, too.

Getting pampered and spoiled at an all-inclusive resort is great. Soaking up the sun is so healing. Playing in the ocean is amazing. The resting, relaxation and recharging is even better, but when we go somewhere, we both really want to get a feel for the local way of life, too.

Isla Mujeres is a perfect place to do that.

The little island is only about five miles long and half-mile wide. It's such a perfect mix of things. If you want to live your week in luxury, you can do that there. If you want to live like a local downtown or rent a tiny little hut with no A/C, you can do that, too. There is something for everyone there; all walks of life on one tiny little island.

One of the main modes of transportation on the island is by scooter or golf cart, though there are a lot of taxi cabs there (so many to look out for without a lot of driving rules applying) and a few vehicles. Anyway, we had a golf cart rented for a couple of days when we were there, but we decided we better schedule an island tour first, to get familiar with everything and get a better idea of what we'd explore on our own.

Well, that turned out to be the best decision ever because that's how we met Luis. A few months ago, I came across "Island Tours with Robby" on the island. (Highly recommend if you ever visit.) The site posted fun pictures every day. I think it was just a local that started a golf cart tour company that really took off! I had been seeing lots of pictures of the tour guides and there was one in particular I was really hoping to get booked with, though we didn't make a personal request. Luis is an older gentleman with gray flowing hair, the kindest eyes and smile, and just sounded like a down-to-earth, enjoyable guide, according to the reviews I had read.

Well, Anna and I came into the lobby that morning and there stood Luis. I was so happy, and it didn't take long to realize what a joy the day ahead of us would be. Luis immediately put us at ease. He took us from north to south, east to west, giving us a history lesson of the island (Isla Mujeres means Island of the Women), the Mayan roots and culture, the local Spanish-influenced life from past and present. He was so knowledgeable. Everywhere we went, people hollered out his name and waved. It was easy to see he was well-known and well-liked.

Luis and his wife are in their 70's and live downtown on the island. He actually drove us by his house, which was fun to see as the houses are so unique there and are assembled in little villages. He was so personable and that's a characteristic I really love in people.

As the day went on, he shared so much with us and brought us to so many places. He brought us to his favorite beach and told us we had to swim there for a bit. He took us away from the hustle and bustle amongst the many tourists and took us to his friend's little open-air restaurant off the beaten path, along the canal. It was nothin' fancy, but it was quaint and nestled in among the palm trees and gave us the true local experience.

The humidity was high and my margarita was cold.

(NA Pina Colada for Anna here; lemonade for Luis.)

We were the only ones around, besides his friend, and we were able to just take a load off and visit with each other for a while.

We learned that Luis grew up in Mexico City. He attended private school where he learned English; his English was very good, too. He was a travel agent in his 20's and was able to visit quite a few places in the USA, but he ultimately ended up in Isla Mujeres because his two grown children moved there and run businesses. In addition to the golf cart tours, they also work as private chefs that people can hire while they are on the island.

Speaking of that, you'd think an island full of traditional Mexican food would have plenty of enchiladas, right? Not so much! We had a hard time finding enchiladas on the menus, which wasn't the worst thing because there were plenty of other delicious options, but Luis knew we were in search of a good cheesy enchilada for lunch. After not having any luck, he said that he should have his daughter make us some, but we didn't take him up on that. They had plans to cook at a private home that night, so we didn't want to

Grygla ECFE & basketball night

The Grygla School hosted its ECFE BBQ fundraiser and elementary basketball night last Thursday. The ECFE Fundraiser supper allows the program to pay for their programming for the year, as well as fund our area's share of the Dolly Parton's Imagination Library, which provides age-appropriate books for our youngest Chargers at no cost to families.

In conjunction with the supper, there was a raffle held with plenty of great baskets to capture the interest of all ages. Tickets were just $1 each with a great number of businesses, families and individuals donating items. More pictures are shared on page 3.

Last week for the March Campaign

Saturday, April 6th, is the last day to donate to the Minnesota Food Share March Campaign for Hunger Awareness to have your contribution eligible to receive funding pro-rated compared to other Minnesota campaign participants. This is the main fundraiser that the Grygla-Gatzke Food Shelf participates in to raise funding to keep operating in the surrounding area and meet the needs of our local clients.

This is their big fundraiser of the year as the ability to generate some matching funds makes it all the more worthwhile. Monetary donations may be sent to treasurer, Lori Thompson, 222 Evelyn Avenue, P. O. Box 105, Grygla, MN 56727. There will be a grocery basket at the Grygla General Store where you can leave your food donations.

Goodridge/Grygla Extracurricular Spring Celebration

The event is called "Charging Ahead", and it will be a social gathering for all of the Charger's extracurricular coaches, directors, advisors, etc. This special event is also open to businesspeople from both communities. Proudly sponsored by Machinewell, Inc. and Fourtown/Grygla Sportsman's Club.

Grygla's Athletic Director, Jeff Mumm, says, "Grygla/Goodridge does it better than the rest!" He is coordinating this event to give himself and Mr. Tomas Loberg the opportunity to thank everyone for what they do in extracurricular activities and to everyone who does things behind the scenes that normally don't get recognized for what they do. "Without them, we wouldn't be regarded as such a great co-op," says Mumm.

He also shared that everyone has a busy life, yet we have so many people going above and beyond making sure our kids have a wonderful experience in the activity that they're in. "All of these people are here before school, after school, sitting on buses, all while taking time away from their families making sure each and every one of their kids in their respected programs feels loved and valued," said Mr. Mumm.

The special event will be on Monday, April 22nd, at The Hound in Grygla. The schedule of events is as follows:

6:30-7pm: Meet and Greet & Appetizers
7-7:30pm: Welcome & Guest Speakers
7:30pm: Program begins

This spring celebration is simply to get everyone together and be proud of what's being done and what deserves recognition. Communities are identified by their extracurricular activities. Mumm said that everyone involved in extracurricular activities are unsung heroes who provide guidance, motivation and inspiration for our kids. He added, "Showing appreciation and gratitude is essential in creating a positive atmosphere and fostering team spirit."

Bear hunt lottery applications available

Prospective bear hunters have until Friday, May 3rd, to apply for a bear hunting license from the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources. Applications for the 2024 season can be submitted online, at any license agent or by telephone at 888-665-4236.
A total of 4,030 licenses are available in 15 quota areas where licenses are limited for the 2024 season, which opens Sunday, Sept. 1, and closes Sunday, Oct. 13.
The number of licenses available each year in the quota area is based on Minnesota's bear population trends for those areas. The trends indicate the bear population has stabilized and is slowly increasing, in part because of recent conservative license quotas. License quotas for the 2024 season are similar to those available for the 2023 season.
Bear hunters who plan to apply for bear permit area 51 should review the boundaries for newly created bear permit area 53 to ensure they select the right area they intend to hunt. Twenty licenses will be available in area 53, which DNR created at the request of the Fond du Lac Band of Lake Superior Chippewa.
Lottery winners will be notified by Saturday, June 1. The deadline to purchase bear hunting licenses awarded by lottery is Thursday, Aug. 1. Any remaining unpurchased licenses will be available over the counter starting at noon on and arts advocates within the seven-county region who stand out in terms of artistry or volunteerism in the arts. Of the Year award winners were nominated by area residents.

Gatzke musician Randy Larson is Artist of the Year. Larson has played with many bands, including Back Behind the Barn Boys and Eagle Creek. He's been a mentor to aspiring musicians in our region. This award can be given to any disciplined artist including visual, performing, or creative writing who are emerging or at a mid-way point in their artistic endeavors. It is a cash award of $500 to use however they see fit.

Grygla potter Betsy Saurdiff will receive the NW Star Award. Artists can only receive the Northwest Star Award once, as a lifetime achievement award. This award is for $5,000 and can be a wonderful gift to those who have chosen a hard career path related to artistic expression. Betsy is a retired German and Visual Arts teacher from the Grygla and Goodridge School Districts. She is a well-known potter in our region and sells her work out of her studio, Betts Pottery, and at art shows. She's had solo shows in the NWMAC gallery and is a regular entrant and award winner in the annual NW Art Exhibit.

The awards banquet will be held on Sunday, April 21st, in Lake Bronson at the Kittson County History Museum. The NW Art Exhibit will be open that day for viewing artwork starting at 12pm. A reception with light refreshments and music will start at 2pm with the awards program at 3pm. The exhibit and reception are open to the public and free to attend. The reception is a wonderful day of celebrating the arts in our region.
