Make Plans to Attend First Lady Event

The Clearwater County First Lady Event will be held Saturday June 12 at the Fireside Grill and Patio in Bagley at 10:00 a.m. The nominations for the 2021 First Lady have been received and the committee has made their selection.

If you haven't been to a First Lady Event before- this is the year to go! We've all been cooped up for a year and this will be a great event to go to. (Men are also invited!) This year's event will feature stories of women from Clearwater County over the last 120 years. It is a jam-packed morning- with speakers, music, and good food and of course a little history. Historical Society executive director Tamara Edevold will emcee the event and the 2020 First Lady Marilyn Ames will also address the audience. The highlight of the morning is when the 2021 First Lady recipient is surprised and honored for her accomplishments.

The 2021 First Lady Award is co-sponsored by First National Bank, Bagley, the Northern State Bank in Gonvick and the Clearwater County Historical Society in Shevlin.

The $15.00 tickets can be purchased through The History Center in Shevlin until June 9. The history center is open Tuesday- Friday between 10 and 4:00. No tickets will be available at the door. Call the Clearwater County Historical Society for more information. 218-785-2000

The complete language of the executive order is here: Signed EO 21-23 Final_tcm1055-482197.pdf Please call if you have questions.

Vaccine: We continue to vaccinate! There continues to be many rumors, incorrect and downright ridiculous information circulating in our community and elsewhere regarding vaccines. There are a lot of legitimate looking websites (many of which originate with some type of anti-vax group) that are sharing and circulating inaccurate information. They are not legitimate! Please use trusted sources Please call if you have questions about the vaccine. We are happy to discuss concerns, questions etc. You may also visit https://www.health.state.mn.us/diseases/coronavirus/vaccine.html

Presently: 3024 residents of Clearwater County have received at least one vaccination dose-43.7%.

Home Country

By Slim Randles
Like a doctor removing something important, Herb Collins gently peeled the wrapper back from the root ball and tenderly placed the baby tree in the hole. Then he stood and walked around it to see which way he should align it. Actually, looks pretty good just the way it is.
So he took his bucket of mixed sand and compost and began sprinkling it down onto the roots and then packing it in gently with his fist.
Every few minutes he'd stop and read the directions again. When he ordered the tree, the nurseryman had written back "Are you sure?" Well, that made ol' Herb laugh. Yes, he was sure. He's always sure this time of year.
He was still chuckling to himself when Janice Thomas walked along the sidewalk.
"Hi Herb," said the high school art teacher. "What is it this year?"
"Papaya, Janice. Nice healthy one, don't you think?"
Janice took a close look at the little dark green tree.
Papaya. "Isn't that a tropical tree?"
"Sure is," he said, tucking more dirt around the roots. "I have to read the instructions carefully to get this right."
Janice thought carefully before speaking. "Papayas sure taste good, Herb."
"Sure do. Wouldn't it be nice if this lives long enough to produce fruit?"
"But you're not expecting ..."
"Of course not. The first nippy day in autumn will turn this little guy belly up."
He looked up and smiled at Janice's consternation.
"You know that banana tree almost made it to Christmas last year. That was my best so far. We'll see how this little guy makes out."
Each year Herb plants something in the front yard that has no chance at all of being there the following spring. He's done it for years. It gives the neighborhood something to look at and talk about, and it's fun.
"You know, Herb, if you're looking for fruit, a cherry tree will produce ..."
"I'm not looking for fruit, Janice," he said, gently. "I'm looking for glory. Glory!"
He laughed. "Where's the glory in planting something that will grow here? Anyone can do that. But a papaya? Ha! There's glory in that."

Letter to the Editor

With more than 60 percent of the Line 3 pipeline replacement project already done, the economic vitality it has brought to Crookston and Northern Minnesota is already being felt.

Construction began in December and to date, more than 5,500 workers have been hired. These good-paying jobs are a huge boost to a region that was hit hard by the pandemic with many put out of work. Additionally, we have the added benefit of out of towners joining our communities during their long-term work on the project.

Our streets are humming again, and after a year indoors, we are all grateful to have so many more friendly faces in our towns thanks to the pipeline workers. These men and women are frequenting our restaurants and coffee shops before and after work. They are stopping by our gas stations and staying at our hotels. The energy is palpable and it's all thanks to the Line 3 pipeline project.

After a long six years of waiting, this project could not have come at a better time for Northern Minnesota, and we are so excited to see work start again so it can be completed.

Dale Stainbrook
Mayor of Crookston
Crookston, MN

To the editor

We often hear more bad stories than good in the newspaper, so I wanted to shed a little light on the positives of the Line 3 pipeline project and the good that it has brought to Northern Minnesota.

While Grand Rapids is not directly on the Line 3 route, our town does act as a staging area and hub for the project. We get workers, equipment and trucks traveling into and through our town, and their presence is being greatly appreciated.

Nearly 6,000 workers have been hired on the project in total since construction began at the end of 2020. Not only are Minnesota families bringing home a paycheck, but out of town workers and their spending has been an incredible addition to our communities as well.

At the IM Hotel, we saw our first full occupancy in a year thanks to Line 3 pipeline workers. Talking to other business owners, they too are seeing an incredible boost in business because of this pipeline and their workers. It has allowed us to bring on more staff, give them more hours, and has kept our town (and hundreds of others) going after a brutal 2020. What's even more exciting, is these pipeliners are such a warm, friendly addition to our communities.

We are so grateful for the Line 3 pipeline project currently underway, and simply want to share a little good news with the readers.

As Work Has Re-Started and Opponents Gather To Try To Stop Construction, Regional Leaders Say Line 3's Significance and Impact Are Important

MORE THAN 5,000 PEOPLE ARE NOW BACK TO WORK AS NEXT PHASE

OF LINE 3 CONSTRUCTION IS MOVING FORWARD ACROSS 14 COUNTIES

(MOUNTAIN IRON, MINN)

As opponents travel to Minnesota from around the country to try to stop it and thousands of people are now back to work on the final phase of work, two regional leaders say the fact that Line 3 was approved and the immediate economic impact it is having are incredibly important. After more than six years of review, construction is now 60 percent complete and crews expect to finish work later this year on one of the largest, privately-funded construction projects in Minnesota history.

"It was a great day for our region and for our state when Line 3 was approved," said Steve Giorgi, Executive Director of the Range Association of Municipalities and Schools (RAMS). "It seemingly is an endless process to get permitted for virtually any kind of construction lately in Minnesota so this was a victory for all. It can be done. You need to have patience, you need to have perseverance. But when you have the right project and you're willing to follow all of the guidelines, eventually you're going to get the go ahead."

"We've been losing a lot of battles up here, and this is one that we're going to win," said Eveleth Mayor Mayor Bob Vlasisavljevich. "It just makes common sense and it protects our environment. The economic impact is going to be immediate and go a long way to changing the area, giving us access to a lot of different things. It's just a win-win. Things are happening here, people are pouring money into the area, and one nice thing: the project didn't involve any taxpayer dollars."

Enbridge is investing more than $2 billion in Minnesota to replace the 337 mile section of the pipeline. The process to replace Line 3 started in 2014 during the Obama-Biden Administration. The Line 3 project is now the most reviewed pipeline project in Minnesota history and has been reviewed by state and federal agencies and regulators for almost six years.

Despite a recent poll that showed Minnesotans strongly support the project, the decision to grant the project final permits and that the project should be allowed to be completed, thousand of opponents are traveling to Minnesota from across the country to try stop construction. This follows repeated attempts by protesters to disrupt meetings, and interfere with construction that have not been able to stop the project.

"You're always going to have the need for petroleum based, natural gas, oil, in some parts of this country," Vlasisavljevich said. "It's a slow transition. It's going to happen. Until then we have to have that capability and we have to know we can rely on it. I think these people don't understand economics or the dynamics, or how it affects everyday quality of life. It's just a 'no' mentality. I think they need a real good education in how this affects it, and I think a lot of people got one."

"I think people are getting a little bit tired with some of the antics of the naysayers, putting themselves at risk, putting workers and EMTs and firefighters at risk," Giorgi said. "Hopefully some of that will subside and we're going to see some steady construction, good safety practices in place and more energy and vibrancy in the communities where these workers are staying and shopping and eating, and conducting their business."

The project is continuing to have a significant economic impact across the region. The Bureau of Business and Economic Research (BBER) at the University of Minnesota Duluth's Labovitz School of Business and Economics study estimated that that Line 3 will support 2,800 retail/hospitality sector jobs and 1,600 local supplier/manufacturer jobs. The study also shows indirect positive economic impacts will include more than $160 million in non-local worker spending on meals, lodging, and incidentals while working in the study area.

"There are a lot of people working on that project from here," Vlasisavljevich said. "You could tell people were excited about it and guys were going to work. I talk with a lot of suppliers, they were really anxious. The impact it was having – it just started everything moving, the money being spent. People don't realize what goes on in the local economy. This is a substantial amount of money that's going for such a huge project."

10 ways to increase graduation rates at no cost.

1. Have every student beginning in fourth grade sign a pledge to graduate. Renew the pledge every year. 2. If you have 50 ninth graders, follow those ninth graders closely for the next four years and do whatever it takes to ensure that all are around when they become seniors. 3. Every teacher should relentlessly remind students from early on, that their number one goal in school is to graduate. 4. Like Bemidji and all cities in Beltrami County, every city council should support a 100% graduation rate initiative and encourage all businesses to do the same. 5. Every school should have as their goal a 100% graduation rate. It should be conspicuously noted on newsletters, signage, electronic marquees, posters, and so on. 6. Every teacher needs to realize that regardless of the grade level they teach, graduating 100% of the students is everyone's responsibility. 7. Teachers should teach every child as if they were their own. 8. The community and school should work in partnership to ensure that a 100% graduation rate becomes a mindset not only for students but also for the citizens. 9. People need to believe that graduating 100% of our students can be done. 10. Students need to understand that we will never give up on them.

American Experiment to Counter Woke Revolution in Schools with Statewide Tour

Raise Our Standards tour will educate and empower parents in 17 cities this June (Golden Valley, MN) Center of the American Experiment announced the Raise Our Standards tour to counter the "woke" political movement invading Minnesota's public schools, turning them into ideological battlegrounds and threatening the quality of our children's education. The tour begins Tuesday, June 8, 2021 in Winona and continues throughout the month, stopping in 17 different cities total.

"Between Critical Race Theory and the draft social studies standards, Minnesota schools are being inundated with a leftist, anti-American agenda that radically changes how our children learn about their country," said Catrin Wigfall, American Experiment education policy fellow and featured speaker on the Raise Our Standards tour. "We are eager to travel across the state to empower parents and citizens to fight back against the 'woke' movement that is transforming our education system."

Wigfall will be joined on several stops by Kendall Qualls, former Minnesota Congressional candidate and founder of TakeCharge, an organization committed to countering the prevailing narrative in popular culture that America is structured to undermine the lives of black Americans.

Attendees will learn how to push back against the politicization of our schools. Each informational session will cover the revisions to Minnesota's social studies standards that are now in progress, the "woke" movement that is transforming our education system, alternatives to public schools, and how to get involved. American Experiment will also unveil a new online tool and resource center to facilitate communication about activities in local schools across the state.

Sanford Health receives four-star CMS rating

BEMIDJI, Minn. – The Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) recently awarded Sanford Bemidji Medical Center its first four-star rating as a part of the CMS 2021 Care Compare program.

For this program, CMS rated over 4,500 hospitals from across the country on a scale of one to five stars, with five stars being the highest rating a hospital could earn. This rating designation is based on how well a hospital performs across different areas of quality, such as mortality; timeliness and effectiveness of care, readmission rates, patient experience and safety of care.

"After this past year, I am tremendously proud of our staff who not only ensured safe and quality care was provided during a pandemic, but improved upon it," shared Susan Jarvis, president and CEO of Sanford Health of Northern Minnesota. "We hope to continue improving the standard and safety of care our community needs and deserves."

We're engaging with Minnesota Tribes and creating opportunities for their citizens and communities to benefit.

At Enbridge, we are proud of our relationships with Indigenous communities, and see them as mutually beneficial—economically, socially and culturally. Our Line 3 replacement marks an unprecedented level of Tribal engagement, inclusion and economic participation.

As part of the Line 3 replacement, we've committed $100 million for Tribal-affiliated work opportunities, and we're engaging with Minnesota Tribes on training, contracting, procurement and hiring.

A Tribal-led Cultural Resources Survey was completed along the project route. With representatives of nine Tribes doing direct survey work, and more than 30 Tribes involved via government-to-government consultation with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, this has been the largest such survey ever attempted in the energy industry.

Most importantly, we've been listening. From the start, we respected the wishes of the Leech Lake Band of Ojibwe to route the new Line 3 around their reservation. We've also signed a 20-year easement renewal with the Fond du Lac Band and made further route changes based on the Tribal Cultural Resources Survey results.
