RLCC High School Won a $10,000 Grant to Further Stem Education Thanks to Local Farmers

ST. LOUIS, Mo., November 8, 2018- America's Farmers Grow Rural Education called on local farmers to nominate rural schools to receive nearly $2.3 million in grants to enhance their science, technology, engineering, and math (STEM) programs. Local farmers answered the call, and the Grow Rural Education program, sponsored by the Monsanto Fund, a philanthropic arm of Bayer, has recognized Red Lake County Central High School (RLCC) in Red Lake County, Minnesota with a $10,000 grant.

RLCC is just one of the many success stories of the Grow Rural Education program. For each winning school, teachers, students and, oftentimes, community members work together to make STEM programs more engaging. RLCC will use the Grow Rural Education program funds to improve and expand the Robotics class and the Science of Design class by adding tools and technology like advanced VEX robotics control systems, two high power work station computers for running CAD (computer aided design) programs and CAM (computer aided manufacturing) simulations, a new 3D printer, and a 3D scanner. These two classes are taught by Mr. Michael Illies.

"Bayer is proud to support programs like America's Farmers Grow Rural Education, which has made such a tremendous impact in rural communities across the United States," said Lisa Safarian, Bayer Crop Science North America. "These grants help drive awareness of career opportunities in agriculture and enhance STEM education for the students who are the next generation of our industry."

To qualify for a Grow Rural Education grant, farmers nominated a public school district to compete for a merit-based grant of either $10,000 or $25,000. Nominated school districts then submitted a grant application that outlined how they would use the funds to enhance their students' STEM education. A panel of qualified teachers review the applications and narrow them down to the finalists. The program's Farmer Advisory Council, consisting of approximately 30 farmer leaders from across the country, then select the winning school districts, including RLCC.

"America's Farmers Grow Rural Education is a special program because farmers play a key role in nominating local schools and selecting the grant winners," said Al Mitchell, Monsanto Fund president. "Each year, countless school winners tell us that the Grow Rural Education grants make a positive impact in their classrooms. For some, the results are evident in student test scores, and many educators say their students are more excited about STEM courses."

Since Grow Rural Education began in 2011, it has awarded more than $16 million to more than 900 school districts in rural communities across the United States. To view a complete list of winners or to learn more about the America's Farmers Grow Rural Education program, visit GrowRuralEducation.com or follow along on Facebook at facebook.com/AmericasFarmers.

Letter to The Editor

Dear Editor,
 No one likes to think about death and dying, but it's the one guarantee in life we have--we will all eventually face it. I may be a little more comfortable with the idea of death than some people. I'm fortunate to be able to play a role in providing comfort, dignity and respect to individuals who face life-limiting illnesses, as well as their families. I work for Hospice of the Red River Valley.

November is National Hospice Month, a time to celebrate this special type of care Hospice of the Red River Valley has been providing for nearly 40 years.

I'm often asked how I can do this work. "Isn't it depressing?" My response is always, "No." Hospice care celebrates life more than it focuses on death. It's not about giving up; it's about living your best. We help people live comfortably for however much time they have left.

People often tell me, I wish we would have called Hospice of the Red River Valley sooner. When people wait too long to learn about options, like hospice care, people end up missing out on precious time with loved ones at home because they are spending difficult days in the hospital or the emergency room.

During National Hospice Month, or anytime, I encourage you to contact us sooner rather than later—even if you just need information. It's never too early for a family to learn about the services Hospice of the Red River Valley can provide. And if you or your family needs hospice care, I hope you'll insist on care from Hospice of the Red River Valley. More information is available at (800) 237-4629 or www.hrrv.org.

Fire Department Visits Preschool in Oklee

The Oklee Preschool class would like to send a big thanks to Doug Cote and the Oklee Fire Department for visiting their classroom. During Fire Safety Week at school, firefighter Cote came to the classroom to talk to the students about fire safety. They also provided each child with a fun fire safety packet at the end of the presentation. The preschool classes used their imaginations all week of pretending to be firefighters. Thanks for all you do Oklee Fire Department!

The preschool students and teachers thank the Oklee Fire Department for teaching the students about their jobs, and explaining how their equipment and truck are very useful.

RLCC preschoolers were very excited to learn the duties of a firefighter, and their procedure of suiting up before heading out on a call.

Fall Music Concert is November 20 at RLCC

By Lily Guillemette
Red Lake County Central High School will be having their annual fall music concert on Tuesday, November 20 at 7:00 pm in the school's gymnasium.

Since the beginning of the school year, band and choir students from grades 7-12 have been learning the history and components of inspirational songs. They have been gearing up to perform to the public music that inspires, such as various spirituals and contemporary blues pieces.

The music department would appreciate a one-dollar donation at the doors and looks forward to moving their audience with deeply heartening songs and instrumentals.

RLCC gets ready for One Act Play

By Abigail Walton
Red Lake County Central Theater is gearing up for this year's one act play. The director is Tyrell Hamrum and he has chosen the play "The Complaint Department and Lemonade."

The basic theme of the play is: "People will complain about anything- not almost anything, but absolutely anything! In this rapid succession of hysterical grievances, the complaint department takes on everything from Oreos to kleptomania and songs stuck in the head to the price of cheese and on and on. Could there be a glimmer of hope for anyone in charge of a complaint department? With a clever concept of rotating each complaint into the seat behind the desk, each character not only airs their own grievances, but must also focus on someone else's problem and assist them with their complaint."

Students interested in participating in the play can sign up in the Oklee school office. Practices start the Monday after Thanksgiving, November 26th.

November 12-16 is American Education Week

By Madison Carlson
American Education Week is November 12th through 16th. This week is dedicated to honoring public education and those who are doing what they can to make sure that every student gets a quality education.

This week-long celebration first started on December 4th through 10th, 1921, and had the NEA and American Legion as cosponsors. In 1922 the U.S. Office of Education joined as a cosponsor. In the year 1938 the PTA also joined.

American Education Week has celebrated those who work in educating America's students for 97 years. This year we celebrate the hard and outstanding work of teachers, bus drivers, paraprofessionals, cafeteria workers, school nurses, school secretaries, custodians and many others. It also acknowledges students and parents as well as the community who can help create quality public education for every student.

Next time you see some who contributes to public education make sure to thank them!

Red Lake County Central competed in a Vocal Solo Contest at the East Grand Forks High School Wednesday, November 7. Seven students signed up to go: one senior, Phillip Sorenson; four juniors, Jayden Iverson, Sidney Olson, Adrienne Jones, and Abby Walton; and two freshmen, Thomas Benson and Kjerstin Nelson. The students were joined by their music teacher Mrs. Patty Mickelson along with Mrs. Peggy Miller who accompanied them on the piano.

Two students received perfect scores including Walton who sang "Think of Me" by Phantom of Opera and Jones who sang "I'm Not That Girl" from Wicked. One junior, Iverson singing "Caro Mio Ben", received a superior rating. Four singers received excellent ratings including Olson who sang "I Have a Dream" from

Mama Mia, Nelson who sang "My Favorite Things" from the Sound of Music, Benson who sang "Follow the Drinking Gourd", and Sorenson who sang "Close Every Door."

Mrs. Mickelson said, "The students had a great day at the contest! Some different judges from those we've had in the past did a great job of working with students." Congratulations to these students.

Lots of fun was had by the children who came to the Oklee Halloween Party which is sponsored by the Oklee Community Club and the RLCC Honor Society.
